FOETRY.

THE AMATEUR SPORTSMAN.

To see a fellow of a summer's morning With a large foxhound of a slumberous eye.
And a slim gun go slowly lurching by.
About to strike the feathered bipeds warring.
That probably they may be shot hereafter.
Exults in me a quiet kind of laughter.
For though I am no lover of the sport Of harmless murder, yet it is to me Almost the funniest thing on earth to see.
A corpulent person, breathing with a snort.
Go on a shooting frolic all alone.
For well I know that when he's out of He and his dog and gun will all lie fast asleep.
And under a dog and gun will all lie fast asleep.

INDIAN SUMMER.

How peaceful all the world appears to be.
How gently shines the morning sun.
Warming the day that sparkles on the leaf.
When, after the long summer's tasks are done.
The harvest gathered, the fair prizes are won.
The hopes of springtime realized, a haze Lies on the distant hills, and hope And there Behold the flocks have courage still to dare.
To gladden with the glory of their feathers.

Serenely in the year's late afternoon All nature seems to claim unhindered The mildness and the warmth of early June.
Make welcome the half hesitating breeze.
A splendor all too brief is on the air.
And eagerly upon the far off slopes The redness of the The flocks are nipping tender blades As if imbued with new, unfading hopes.
A mellow tenderness is over all:
On outlines that were sharp awhile ago.
A graceful, rounded softness seems to fall.
And the sun and the sun are aglow.
But still from fragrant fields mild breezes blow.
Scenes that were commonplace have grown sublime.
The fountains of the world forth anew.
And on the gables doves are wont to roost.
As if it were again their mating time.

The world has only kindness to display.
As when a man whose useful work is done.
Turns from the turmoil and the strife To claim the peace he worthily has won.
Who, after the long, last slumber is begun.
Reclaims the joy of youth a little while.
Who having freed himself of all his care.
Forgets the burden that Ambition bears.
And cheerily greets the morning with a smile.

BARLENE'S VIOLIN.

Wondrous Tone of His Instrument Shows Hand of a Master-Maker.

The many beautiful romances woven by enthusiastic press agents and unscrupulous dealers in violins may have their place in the history of the instrument, but occasionally the simple facts regarding a rare instrument and its player appear more strongly to the imagination.

For instance: Karl Barlene, the eminent virtuoso and member of the Boston Symphony orchestra, plays a truly remarkable instrument, the tone of which has excited the admiration of thousands of hearers in two continents and while connoisseurs of note, after examination, have believed it to be a rare and genuine Stradivarius, the artist who brings it out of notes of exquisite sweetness makes no such claim and modestly states that no one really knows who made this violin.

However, it is evident that a master-maker fashioned the noble instrument, and artists of rare judgment have duly respected its claim to noble birth. Herr Moeller of Leipzig, Germany, a patron of music and connoisseur of instruments, picked up this particular violin during one of his journeys through Italy, and as its rare virtues were immediately recognized by the famous violinist, he learned to appreciate the instrument at its real worth. Soon after Herr Moeller's death, the violin was brought to the attention of a collector at the Leipzig conservatory who had compelled marked attention by his skill as a violinist. He was the notice of Franz Moeller, whose drawing room was always open to the great musicians who visited the famous city. The student was none other than Karl Barlene.

From that time until the present, through the kindness of this lady, Mr.
Barlene has had this violin in his possession. For years it has been insured for several thousand dollars, and its value from both the musician and connoisseur's point of view has greatly increased.

The enchanting music drawn from this violin by the magic bow of the master will delight all who attend the recital at the Central Baptist church Tuesday evening.

EXCEPTIONALLY STRONG BILL

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

The present week promises to be a big one at the popular Auditorium and one that will eclipse all former ones this season. The management have framed up a show that is positively the highest priced vaudeville offering that this city has witnessed in some time.
All the acts are what is known as "time" acts, that is, acts that play only the best houses in the country, such as Keith's, Peck's, Williams' and the Orpheum circuit.

The headline is Don Ramsay's Har-monists, who present the singing troupe entitled Kameled. Don Ramsay is the popular composer, is the owner of the act, and he has put his best efforts into it, and consequently as a genuine comedy with good singing it ranks as one of the best acts of this kind on the stage today.

Feature No. 2 is Alf Ripon, Scotland's premier ventriloquist, Mr. Ripon is a genuine Scotchman, with an inimitable drawl and a sense of humor which that nationality is famous. As a ventriloquist he is without a peer on either side of the Atlantic, and therefore he is the highest salaried single artist that has ever been seen in a Norwich vaudeville house.

Feature No. 3 is Cameron and Kenedy in their specialty, consisting of some clever singing, dancing and costume changes. Some of their costumes numbers are very unique, and this clever musical comedy couple will please and entertain.

Feature No. 4 is The Human Sacrifice, a spectacular photoplay in two parts. It has been said that an American company could not possibly produce anything in this line to equal the European firms, and it has remained for the famous Reliance Co. to refute this argument, as this picture beats anything that has been produced on the other side. The scenes are wonderful and the acting is of the highest order.

FARM ESTATES

This advertisement will be read by 50,000 people, and there are many among that number who are contemplating purchasing a FARM, because a farm is something that cannot fall nor disappear, for it brings to its owner both contentment and profit, and as I have in my employ under yearly contract a Photographer, Civil Engineer, Lawyer and Analytical Chemist you get the benefit of costly experiments and the best legal advice, giving the purchaser a chemical analysis of the soil and an absolutely perfect title I make a specialty of New England Farms and Country Estates, and if after viewing properties on my list you purchase a place, remember I pay all your expenses from the time you leave home until you return for any distance not over 600 miles.

Exceptional bargains in Washington and New London Counties. Of the 400 on my list I quote a few:

$1500 is all I ask for a cozy home consisting of a cottage house, seven rooms, good cellar, barn, crib and barn. 1/2 acre of land, water, and spring water, place situated in good neighborhood, 4 miles to church, school and village, and the price is only $1500 cash.

76 acre farm, 800 cords of standing wood, some fruit, level land, small house and barn in fair condition, never failing water at house and in pastures.
This place is situated only 1/2 mile from a quiet village, and the price is only $700 cash.
